ETHICS & SOCIETY: A SPEAKER SERIES

OLLI is honored to offer this speaker series in conjunction with the Ethics Programs at UM. Established in 1991, the University of Miami Ethics Programs foster and support a range of efforts dedicated to education, research and community service in ethics and the professions. We do this by sponsoring and developing a variety of courses, conferences, research projects, seminars and other activities around the University of Miami and with partners throughout Florida, the United States and the Americas.

Week 1: Who's Healthy, Who's Not, and Will Obamacare make any difference? Dr. Reid Cushman, Director, RCR Program.

Week 2: Use of Animals in Research. Dr. Paul Braunschweiger, Director, Collaborative Institutional Training Initiative Program

Week 3: To the Barracides! Ethics, History & Film. Dr. Stephen Sapp, Professor, Dept of Religious Studies.

Week 4: What we've learned since Nuremburg: from human guinea pigs to research participants. Dr. Sergio Litewka, Director, International Operations for the UM Ethics Programs.

Week 5: Death, Taxes, and Ethics: The Proper role of government in civil society. Dr. Kenneth Goodman, Director, Arsht Ethics Initiatives.

Week 6: Test-tube babies, genetically engineered soldiers and grandma's clone: new challenges in biomedical research. Dr. Kenneth Goodman,
