 DIALOGUES IN RESEARCH ETHICS

---

Dialogue 9
Paying for Research12 Noon, Friday, May 14, 1993, RMSB 3109

—→Lunch will be provided←—

Many if not most university researchers and administrators find that they are spending an increasingly disproportionate amount of time trying to raise money to support their work. They are also exploring new and potentially controversial donors. It has been suggested that research is increasingly driven less by scientific and other intellectual goals than by the availability of financial support. This dialogue will address some consequent problems, including relations between academia and industry, "commercial research," and real and potential conflicts of interest.

Co-chairs of the ninth dialogue are Robert W. Rubin, Ph.D., Vice Provost and Deputy Dean for Research and Graduate Studies; and Kenneth Goodman, Ph.D., Director of the Forum for Medical Ethics and Philosophy. This dialogue concludes the 1992-93 series.

*Dialogues in Research Ethics is a series of monthly conferences sponsored by the University of Miami Forum for Medical Ethics and Philosophy, the Department of Microbiology and Immunology, and the Office of the Vice Provost and Deputy Dean for Research and Graduate Studies.
