Recent cases of misconduct by public health researchers have been under especially intense public scrutiny because of their profound policy implications. The cases are instructive for scientists in all fields, and they illustrate the thesis that prevention is the best strategy for dealing with misconduct.

Dr. Soskolne is a professor in the Epidemiology Program of the University of Alberta's Department of Public Health Sciences, and Chair of the Standing Committee on Ethics and Philosophy of the International Society of Environmental Epidemiology.

Dialogues in Research Ethics is a series of monthly conferences. For more information about the series, phone 547-5723, write to Medical Campus Box M-825 or send E-mail to kgoodman@newssun.med.miami.edu
