Young scientists learn the ethics of research in part by working with senior scientists and observing how they deal with ethical questions and challenges. But as science becomes increasingly complex, there is a need for a more formal introduction to ethical issues—and for students to take a role in that process. This dialogue will feature case presentations emphasizing challenges for graduate students, including those involving mentor-student relations.

UM graduate students Jennifer Grad and Tristan Fiedler recently completed a National Science Foundation Graduate Research Ethics Education Workshop at the University of Indiana.

Dialogues in Research Ethics is a series of monthly conferences. For more information about the series, phone 243-5723, write to Medical Campus Box M-825 or send E-mail to ethics@newssun.med.miami.edu
