A recent series of workshops in Zambia makes clear that the challenge of providing adequate protection for human subjects is an international one – with a number of twists. It is, nevertheless, a particularly acute challenge in a region with limited resources and which relies on Western sources of funding for most research.

Dr. Brito is Director of UM's Pediatric Mobile Clinic and of Research and Public Policy for the Bioethics Program. He recently returned from Zambia where he was working to broaden UM-African collaboration in human subject research ethics.

Dialogues in Research Ethics is a series of monthly conferences. For more information, phone 305-243-5723, write to Campus Box M-825 or send E-mail to ethics@miami.edu
